Creating a Template of Possibility for Our Children Culturally, the image of the mother is often perched atop a pedestal of purity²⁰¹⁴she is supposed to be long-suffering, patient, never ruffled, always available, unconditional, and beaming white light. But there is another side. Many women find that motherhood challenges them with a scale of extremes²⁰¹³ love and terror, joy and frustration, inspiration and exhaustion. They discover that to have a child means to live with their hearts outside of their bodies. It also means navigating what can feel like a great divide between caring for their children and caring for themselves as individuals. Mothers are often doing invisible work, work that rarely gets rewarded. Mothers struggle to find balance between attentive parenting and the pursuit of their individual dreams. We believe that a mother^{2019s} achievements serve as a template of possibility for our children^{2019s} lives. If there^{2019s} one prime lesson a woman learns when she becomes a mother it^{2019s} that she won^{2019t} make it very far through these challenges without the support of other mothers. Milk and Ink: A Mosaic of Motherhood is an anthology comprised of writing mothers who have gathered their words to celebrate the duality and intensity of being both mother and writer; it aims to appeal to mothers of all stripes, whether they write or not. Milk and Ink will feature new and established writers including Caroline Leavitt, Tracey Slaughter, Ellen Meister, Justine Musk and more, with a wide scope of experience, ethnicity and points of view, and features poetry, fiction, and essays. While Milk and Ink is focusing on the experience of motherhood, we also hope that our stories speak to everyone: fathers, daughters,...
