Excerpt from A Complete System of Practical Book-Keeping: In Six Sets of Books Also The major part of young men in our country, are, to some extent, accountants; and if required to keep accounts at all, they should be able to do it in a manner intelligible to themselves and to others. While almost every branch of education is thoroughly taught in our schools and colleges, the commercial education of young men is almost, or quite neglected; and this too, when many youth enter those institutions with the design of following mercantile pursuits after they are graduated. Indeed, no class of individuals has had less helps to qualify themselves for their business previously to entering upon it, than merchants clerks. Every business man should be entirely acquainted with the principles of Double-Entry, that he may classify and conduct his accounts in such a manner as will disclose to himself and to others, (if need be) the true state of his affairs. By Single-Entry, the merchant cannot trace out the changes through which his property has passed; and though he may, by picking up the odds and ends, ascertain what his property is worth, he is, nevertheless, unable to tell on what branches of his business, (if it is extensive) he has realized his gains. For a person who is receiving money for rents, for dividends on stocks, for freight of ships, and for merchandise, it is important that he keep an account with each of these branches of his business, that he may know what part of his property nets him the most per cent. With such information before the mind, the judicious will withdraw his capital from the unproductive, and invest it..
